Rules and Permission

Photos should show the people, places, and critters of America's rangelands. Color and black-and-white images are accepted. Amateur and professional photographers may enter. No cloning of physical objects or major color or tonal shifts. Cropping, subtle color correction, contrast adjustment, black-and-white conversion, and spot removal are allowed. Watermarks, names, and date stamps may disqualify an image.

Entrants grant RANGE permission to use submitted photos for contest judging, contest publicity, and possible use in magazines, calendars, and books. Calendar, book, or magazine use may earn extra money.
